REPORT:

One day workshop on "Candle making & detergent preparation" Motto of the workshop is "Earn while learning".

The inauguration of the workshop was done by watering the plant from the resource persons Dr. H. V. Rajeshwari and Dr. Pramod K. Kattimani, Assistant professors of Chemistry, G.E Society's, JSS College, Gokak. To encourage, acquire practical skills and create more excitement science journey among the students a one day workshop was organized by the Placement Cell in collaboration with the department of Chemistry.

The key note address was given by the Dr. Pramod K. Kattimani, Assistant professor of Chemistry, G.E Society's, JSS College, Gokak. He gave a brief introduction about the chemistry of chemical reactions that are taking place in our day to day life. He said that our life begins with chemistry and ends with chemistry by giving very realistic and natural examples. He also stressed about the importance of skills that is very essential in the 21st information century for the students along with their degree certificate. He also explained the significance of the workshop and the self-employment opportunity which could be extracted by the student without dependent on the others in setting up of small scale industry which is supported by the central government and state government. Further he asked all the students to make use of the workshop effectively and requested them to have interaction during the experiential learning of candle making and detergent preparation.

The workshop can be divided into four main parts.

In the first part, the resource person, Dr. H. V. Rajeshwari said that her motto of workshop is "Earn while learning" and gave a brief introduction about the chemical composition, the techniques and methods of preparation of the detergents followed by the mechanism of action through the PPT presentation. In her speech she said that any idea with creative innovations can bring novel technological products which could be used for the economic development as it is the era of startups century. She gave information about the present government in both state and central level are supporting financially and also providing the incubation centre for carrying out the startups. She asked the students to be active and can earn while learning process by acquiring some of the basic sets of analytical skills to produce the essential materials at home and can be transformed that in to a value added product in order to become self-sustainable as a part time business. She explained the different types of detergents that are available commercially and their mechanism of action. It was found to be very interesting that at dilute concentration of the detergents and at very less amount of the solvent medium only the cleansing action is very effective for the removal of dirt.

example of how the washed detergent waste water can be reused for cleaning the commode in the toilet room in countries like JAPAN in order to minimize the wastage of water and also asked the students to follow the same. A comparison of the table depicting the rates of the various detergents such as Surf excel, Tide, Nirma, Vanish, Mr. White, Rin, Henko, Wheel, Gadi, Persil, was thought provoking, and highly informative.

In the second part of the workshop, she explained about the chemistry of candle making and mechanism of formation of candle and production of high quality of candle and the important chemical ingredients required for its preparation.

In the third part of the workshop, after the ppt presentation, the resource persons, Dr. H. V. Rajeshwari along with Dr. Pramod P. Kattimani performed the demonstration of making the candle in the morning session in the chemistry laboratory 2. She explained in details about the materials required for the preparations and steps involved in the procedures of making the candles. She cautioned that the moulds should be oiled before pouring the hot wax inside the mould and to take extra precautions while carrying out any kind of chemical experiments.

Further, the fourth part of the workshop included the preparation of detergents from different materials. This part of the workshop was carried out in the college garden as it involved mixing of acidic slurries and other small sized mesh particles to prepare the detergent powders. Each of the individual students involved in the detergent preparations and made them into 10 teams. Each of the groups is provided with masks, hand gloves, Teflon coated sticks, as part of the safety measures and instructed its usage periodically. The resource persons took care of each of the individuals and provided the sets of chemicals in a chronological order for mixing the ingredients and followed the certain protocols as given by them. It took more than 1.30 hours of mixing and preparation of the detergents and finally asked the non-teaching faculties to seal it in packets for distribution among themselves. Moreover, the students interacted well with the resource persons in clarifying their doubts.

Overall, the workshop was highly motivational, so inspiring that some of the students even took the prepared detergents for washing their clothes and felt very happy that their prepared detergents work very well in cleaning the dirt as revealed by the results.

Finally the presidential remarks were given by Dr. P. S. Manoli, Academic coordinator, SSTP College, Sankeshwar and concluded with vote of thanks by Dr. Honnur Krishna, Placement cell officer and Assistant professor, Department of Chemistry, SSTP College, Sankeshwar.
